

University of Minnesota Student Introductions

Heather Mullins

Major: Kinesiology (study of human movement)

Gender: Female

Year: Senior (last year!)

Hobbies: As you can see in the picture, I love hiking, camping, and being outdoors! Here I am sitting in a tall Redwood Tree that I climbed into. When I am indoors, I like to read books or go to the gym to work out with my friends, or just run. I also like watching nature documentaries or funny videos on Youtube.

Name: Polina

Year in school: first year

Major: Art History

I really like: dancing, acting, biking, doing yoga, clothes shopping, taking pictures, learning different cultures, going on adventures, meeting new people

I don't like: when people tell you something is impossible, close-minded people, when I disappoint people I care about

Liam Bunchung Ly

Major: Neuroscience and Psychology

Gender: Male

College: Macalester College

Year: Class of 2016

Current role: Researcher at the Institute of Child Development at the University of Minnesota

Background: I am a second-generation Chinese descent, born and raised in Cambodia. I spent my childhood in Cambodia and moved to Singapore for high school. In 2012, I decided to move to U.S. for college where I attended Macalester College in Saint Paul, Minnesota. Upon graduation, I have been working at the University of Minnesota as a researcher since. I possess a strong passion for multiculturalism, internationalism and service to others. I am also a big believer in education as a source of changes.

Hobbies: I love playing volleyball, with a preference to be an outside hitter. To name a few, outdoor activities, cooking and visiting new places are a few of my favorite activities. I am trying to be a better tennis player and runner too.
